WELCOME, GOVERNOR

Appomattox will welcome the opportunity this Saturday to play host to Colgate W. Darden, Jr., Governor of Virginia. He will be here to speak in connection with the War Bond Auction at the Court House at 12 o'clock.

Colgate Darden has done a bang-up job as Virginia's war-time governor. He has been on spoken in behalf of sound government and unyielding in leadership to see that the Old Dominion measured up to her wartime responsibilities. He has put fearlessness and conviction into proper blend with hard work to benefit himself well, and it is typical of the man that his first visit to Appomattox is in the service of promoting a great war project. A fine Governor, a charming citizen, His Excellency deserves and will receive a hearty welcome.

AN IDEA CLICKS

Oftentimes, things planned and ordered into hurriedly are more successful than those long-drawn-ing. The decision to conduct a War Bond Auction here Saturday was made Thursday at the meeting of the local Lions Club and a committee, headed by R. L. Burke, Jr., was appointed. Governor Darden accepted an invitation to a tend, Col. Markey arranged to have the Camp Pickett Band provide music, local Minute Men arranged to be present . . . everything clicked from the start, and indications are that there will be a great throng present. However, it must be remembered that the idea of the occasion is to sell War Bonds, not just to "see the Governor" or hear the military band! So, when you come, be prepared to buy War Bonds!

Thanks are due to various committees for their many hours of hard work. A swell job.

EXPECT CASUALTIES

The very nature of the situation confronting our armies in Italy indicates we must expect and be prepared for heavy casualties. Lots of fine American boys will fall on the rugged coasts of Italy. And when you must fight your way in from ships, you have a minimum of time to set up field hospitals for the care of wounded. Once bridgeheads are firmly established, adequate facilities will follow. We shall enter into our home-front responsibilities in the consciousness that out utmost is small in comparison with what our armed forces are doing.

We trust that no American boy will fail at Salerno because we at home failed to furnish him with "enough . . . and in time!"

AT THE PEAK

If we may assume that the peak of home-front war effor, has been reached, then surely we can truthfully say that "it hasn't been so bad." If even a fraction of what we read of the sacrifices and hardships of the civilian population both among our allies and our enemies is true, . . . and we have no reason to doubt the truth of any of it, . . . then we have gotten along wonderfully well. Our sacrifices have been negligible as far as food and necessities of life are concerned, and we have been deprived of few luxuries. We are told that from now on we shall probably recede from the peak of war conversion, and that the manufacture of consumer goods will gradually be resumed. If so, then we should pay tribute both to our governmen and to the American productive system for the able handling of a tremendous war time job. It could have been a lot worse.

To the People of this Community:

PLAIN WARNING TO YOU!

Here is a plain warning for you . . .

"This war will last until 1949 or longer if the home front fails to back up our men in battle"

2nd WAR LOAN

. . . Frank Knox, Secretary of the Navy.

Buying War Bonds to the point of temporary personal sacrifice is the most direct way you can comply with Secretary Knox's appeal.

"Temporary sacrifice" is the correct phrase because you are only lending your money when you buy War Bonds. This government which never has defaulted on an obligation will pay you back $4 for every $3 invested if you hold the bonds for 10 years.

The least you can do is to back the attack with War Bonds today. Buy extra Bonds above your normal Bond buying.

THE SIN OF MOSES AND AARON

LESSON TEXT—Numbers 20:1-13, 27, 28.

GOLDEN TEXT—Be ye angry, and sin not.—Ephesians 4:26.

Sin is a serious matter, and even though men in our day may not call it by its real name, it is as much here as it was in the days of Moses —and it is just as awfully sinful as ever.

Sin is universal; it appears not only among the people, but also among their leaders. God's dealing with it is on the basis of "greater privilege, greater responsibility." No leader, especially in God's cause, can expect special consideration of his weakness. He must meet God and answer for his sin.

I. The Unbelief of the People (vv. 1-5).

It is well to bear in mind that the people of Israel who were now at Kadesh-Barnea, on the borderland of Canaan, had been here once before—40 years before. Here they had rebelled against God in unbelief because of the report of the spies concerning the land. Because of their unwillingness to take God at His word, they had been sent to wander 40 years in the wilderness until the complainers had died. Read that graphic and instructive story in Numbers 13 and 14.

Now they were back at Kadesh—and a new generation shows that the spirit of unbelief and distrust has a hold on humanity, and makes son like father.

They had run short of water. The spring which had served their fathers on the previous visit to Kadesh had run dry.

One would have supposed that all the mighty dealings of God in their deliverance over and over again, would have indicated the need of faith; but they had only a wailing criticism of God and His leaders.

II. The Answer—God's Power (vv. 6-8).

Moses and Aaron, now old men but still God's chosen leaders, took their sorrow to Him (v. 6). It was the right place to go, for power belongeth unto the Lord (Ps. 62:11).

Instead of punishing the people for their unbelief, God calls upon His servant Moses to show them that He (God) is able. At a word from Moses, the rock would bring forth water before their eyes.

Is not that the perfect answer to all man's questioning and lack of faith—the revelation of the omnipotence of God?

But God's purpose is defeated (at least in a measure) by the

III. Unbelief of the Leaders (vv. 9-11).

Instead of taking their place as the servants and subordinates of God, Moses and Aaron claimed that they would provide water (v. 10). Instead of showing God's power by speaking to the rock, and His mercy in providing for the people, they uttered a rebuke of them, by smiting the rock, took to themselves the honor that really belonged to God.

When called upon to act for God, they acted for themselves, and in their own name. They used for their own glory the power delegated to them by God. Let us beware that we do not fall into the same error.

Let us also note that if the punishment seems severe, we should recall that they had broken a type of Christ. Christ was the Rock. He was to be smitten at Calvary, that the water of life might flow forth. BIB He died once for sin (I Cor. 10:4) and is not to be smitten again. We need now only speak to Him in faith and receive life.

In Exodus 17:5, 6, Moses smote the rock, presenting the first half of the type foreshadowing the work of Christ; now he was to speak to it, fulfilling the type, and in unbelief he destroyed God's picture or type of redemption. It was a grievous sin.

IV. The Answer—Judgment (vv. 12, 13, 27, 28).

Moses and Aaron were not to be permitted to enter the promised land, because of their failure. No doubt it was true that their departure to be with the Lord was in a sense "far better" for them; and yet it cannot be denied that there was disappointment in not seeing the conclusion of their long and arduous labors.

The lesson is clear. We may serve God long and faithfully, but that is not any excuse for "letting down" in our closing years. We dare not presume, as though our intimate touch with God and place of leadership gave us an "inside track," a right to take it easy, spiritually or morally.

Sin is always sin; and it is especially grievous in one who has the privilege of high position and of power with God.

God buried His workmen; but His work went on. For Aaron there was his son Eleazar (v. 28). For Moses there was a Joshua, "full of the spirit of wisdom" (Deut. 34:9). It is always so. None of us is indispensable.

MORE LISTINGS FOR THE

"TRADING POST"!

Here is your opportunity to help someone who needs an electrical appliance and can't find one to buy! Maybe it's a toaster, or a waffle iron, or a floor lamp that you do not need—it's been on a shelf in a closet for a long time doing nobody any good. This is no time to "simply keep it for sentimental reasons". Let the TRADING POST find a buyer for it.

If it's still in usable condition, an electrical appliance can be made to last a long time. Hundreds of old electric irons need only a new cord or plug to be put back to work. Many families are in almost "desperate" need of these old irons and, since cord sets are still available, they will be glad to buy them if you will sell them. The TRADING POST will find buyers for those extra irons!

The TRADING POST is a free service to our customers. Simply phone or visit the nearest V.P.S. office and have your listing posted. Chances are that you'll get cash for your old appliances. Use the cash to buy War Stamps and the old appliance does "double-duty" for the War Effort!

Battlefront of Sacrifice Is Urged Upon U. S. Women to Aid 3rd War Loan Drive

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The women of America are going all out to make a success of the Third War Loan Drive—to "Back the Attack" to the limit. For weeks they have been organizing to do their share toward raising the Treasury's unprecedented goal of 15 billion dollars in War Bond sales to non-banking investors.

In order to lay the groundwork for this intensive organization far enough in advance of the drive, Miss Harriet Elliott, Associate Field Director of the War Finance Division, in charge of women's activities, made a swing around the country during July. Regional conferences were held in Atlanta, Dallas, San Francisco, Denver, Cleveland and Boston.

"Women have been called to the battlefronts of sacrifice at a time when their brains, energies and money are most needed," says Miss Elliott. "'Buy Bonds—by sacrifice,' is the order of the day. If every woman in America would pledge herself to do without everything she possibly can, and carry out that pledge faithfully, she would make a genuine contribution to victory."

All groups of women are active in the drive. Many cities and counties are conducting house-to-house canvasses and carrying out other promotional campaigns to see that every individual in these United States is reached to buy an extra $100 Bond in September. "It takes bench-to-bench, desk-to-desk, house-to-house, person-to-person contact to put over the job," Miss Elliott believes.

United in this tremendous effort are women belonging to foreign origin groups of every nationality, Negro women, college girls, farm women, war workers, club women —professional, religious, industrial, cultural, educational, patriotic and social groups—in fact, women of every age, from every walk of life.

SOUTHERN STATES FARM LIFE

THE midsummer drouth which burned up the pastures and fired the corn in a large part of Southern States territory took a toll of about $50,000,000. It was up for this serious loss of grass and grain, farmers will need to fertilize more heavily than ever this fall to produce more feed.

Fortunately nitrogen, which was so scarce last fall—is now on the plentiful side. Farmers can now use nitrogen fertilizer on small grains without restriction.

Fertilizing heavily this fall means more grain to harvest next summer and a bigger hay crop to follow. Southern States 4-12-4 is a good fertilizer for small grains and for the grass and clover seeded with the grain. Like all Southern States fertilizers, it is open formula.

Farm machinery and tools that stand out in the rain and snow and storms all winter are apt to be pretty sorry looking next spring. The place for them this winter is in the barn or shed where they're protected. Before you put your machinery and equipment away for the winter, wipe off the dirt and rust and give them a good coat of Southern States Implement Paint.

Now that you drive your car only when you absolutely have to, the amount of sludge that gets into your motor oil is apt to increase. To keep your motor in top-notch condition during the winter at least three oil changes should be made—in October, December and February, for instance. It's good insurance to get a supply of Unico Motor Oil from —— your Southern States Service Agency—and to change your oil regularly this winter.

IT'S A FACT!

that the Baltimore Fertilizer Plant of Southern States Cooperative is the largest fertilizer factory in in the world owned and operated by farmers.
